

Record fundraising

Virginia Tech raised more than $162 million in fiscal year 2017, a 62 percent increase over the previous year. Nearly 35,000 people contributed during the year, which set the university's second consecutive fundraising record.

In his first year as Tech's president, Timothy Sands rolled the university's fundraising, communications and alumni relations operations into the Division of Advancement. Charlie Phlegar, who holds two degrees from Tech, heads the division.

Source: Virginia Tech website